

Interventions for Managing Suicide Risk through Crisis Response Planning

*A workshop presented by Craig Bryan, PsyD
Executive Director of the National Center for Veterans Studies at the University of Utah*

Join us for a free half-day workshop designed for social workers, psychologists, counselors, and therapists to enhance professionals' knowledge about Crisis Response Planning for managing acute suicide risk, and to increase their ability to confidently and competently administer this intervention with at-risk individuals.

The workshop provides:

- Didactic knowledge about suicide
- Development of the Crisis Response Plan intervention and its empirical support
- Clinical demonstrations
- Opportunity to practice newly acquired skills

Skills learned will apply to all client populations, and continuing education credits are available.

Craig J. Bryan, PsyD, ABPP, is a board-certified clinical psychologist in cognitive behavioral psychology, and is currently the executive director of the National Center for Veterans Studies at the University of Utah. In 2001, Bryan earned his undergraduate degree from the University of Evansville, and in 2006 he earned a PsyD in clinical psychology from Baylor University. He completed his clinical psychology residency at the Wilford Hall Medical Center, Lackland Air Force Base, Texas. He was retained as faculty in the Department of Psychology at Wilford Hall Medical Center, where he was chief of the Primary Care Psychology Service, as well as the Suicide Prevention Program manager for Lackland AFB. Bryan deployed to Balad, Iraq, in 2009, where he served as the director of the Traumatic Brain Injury Clinic at the Air Force Theater Hospital. He separated from Air Force active duty service shortly after his deployment and currently researches suicidal behaviors and suicide prevention strategies, and psychological health and resiliency. He manages numerous federally funded projects related to treatments for suicide prevention and has published more than 120 scientific articles and written several books on the subject. Bryan has served on the Board of Directors of the American Association for Suicidology and is considered a leading national expert on military and veteran suicide.
